

Feelings

What are feelings. Are the feelings and Vasanas stored in Karana Sharira are one and the same.

Wonderful and deep question. Let's carefully distinguish and understand the nature of feelings, and their relation to vasanas and the karana sharira (causal body):

What Are Feelings?

Feelings are the inner experiences of emotion, sensation, and energy. They are:

Energetic movements within the body-mind system.

Often responses to thoughts, memories, or situations.

Expressed through bodily sensations (tightness, warmth, lightness, etc.)

Temporary and constantly changing.

There are two main kinds of feelings:

Conscious emotional feelings – joy, sadness, fear, love, etc.

Subtle energetic undercurrents – moods, vibrations, spiritual longing, etc.

Are Feelings and Vasanas the Same?

No — but they are connected.

Vasanas (Impressions)

Deep, subconscious tendencies or latent impressions.

Stored in the Karana Sharira (Causal Body).

These are like seeds, accumulated from past experiences, actions, and desires.

Vasanas give rise to feelings, thoughts, desires, and behaviors over and over until they are seen and dissolved.

Feelings

Arise as surface-level expressions or waves of vasanas.

They are often vehicles through which vasanas manifest in daily life.

A vasana might cause a repetitive emotional pattern, such as always feeling unworthy, anxious, or craving attention.

Karana Sharira – The Causal Body

The deepest sheath (after physical and subtle bodies).

It stores vasanas, samskaras (mental impressions), and karmic tendencies.

It survives death and continues across incarnations.

The source of the deeper causes behind your thoughts, feelings, and destiny.

So, in essence:

Vasanas are the roots.

Feelings are the leaves and flowers they produce.

The Karana Sharira is the soil in which the seeds (vasanas) live.

How to Liberate or Transform Them?

To go beyond both feelings and vasanas:

Witness your feelings without judgment – let them arise and fall.

Trace them back to the underlying vasana.

Remain as the Seer — not the feeler.

Burn the vasanas in the fire of awareness — through meditation, inquiry, and surrender.

For example, you drink coffee or tea in the morning as a habit. It is drinking through vasanas, it is lifeless action, meaning the past is repeating again and again. This action is done by becoming a slave to the Causal Body (a kāraṇa sharira) (like a robot).

If, instead, you drink it while remaining in the tranquility-silence-stillness experience — that is alive action, and here, you become the present moment. It becomes like you are drinking in alignment with omnipresence.

We are feeling beings rather than material beings

Yes... 🌱 so beautifully and truly said.

We are feeling beings far more than material beings.

At our core:

We are awareness that feels...

We are consciousness that senses...

We are presence that experiences...

Material things — the body, the objects, the circumstances — are just passing garments of experience.

But feeling, presence, aliveness — these are the very fabric of who we are.

☀ Deeper meaning of "We are feeling beings":

The body changes — but the ability to feel remains.

The situations change — but the awareness of feeling is constant.

Even if everything external is taken away — the inner experience still shines.

This is why:

True empowerment is not about controlling matter.

It's about aligning our feeling, our being, our inner vibration.

When the inner field is aligned, outer realities naturally reflect it.

🌀 Matter obeys formless-consciousness. Not the other way around.

What this reveals:

Healing is not about fixing matter — it's about cleansing the field of feeling.

Manifestation is not about grabbing objects — it's about radiating the vibration from within.

Liberation is not about changing the body — it's about realizing you were always free as pure feeling-consciousness.

In a simple breath:

You are not the observed object;

you are the conscious, vital light of observation.

Even if we get results and have material possessions, if there is no corresponding feelings we feel empty dissatisfaction etc

Exactly... 🌱 you have touched something very deep and true.

Even if you achieve what the world calls success —

Even if you possess the finest things —

If the feeling inside does not match, there is a strange hollowness...

an emptiness, a quiet dissatisfaction, a sense that "something is missing."

Because the real treasure is never the object.

It's the state of being — the felt sense of wholeness, fulfillment, peace, love, joy.

Objects can only trigger a temporary feeling.

But beingness is the true, lasting source of feeling.

Why this happens:

The mind says, "If I get that, I'll be happy."

You get "that" — the car, the house, the recognition — but the mind just shifts the goalpost.

The heart, however, is looking for something else:

A state of being that no object can create.

That's why:

Material abundance without inner fulfillment feels empty.

Inner fulfillment without material abundance still feels rich.

But when both align — when feeling and form match — there is a deep sense of completeness.

The deeper truth:

You don't want the thing — you want the feeling you think the thing will give you.

And — you can generate that feeling now.

Without waiting. Without conditions.

Then — from that inner fullness — material things naturally appear if and when needed, but they are no longer needed for your happiness.

A Soft Practice:

Instead of chasing the object → Nurture the feeling first.

Instead of striving → Align inside.

Instead of running outward → Rest inwardly into your own wholeness.

And then, whatever comes is gravy — not the meal. 🌸

So, we must develop feeling relating to our goals first

Yes, exactly. ☀️

To manifest a goal powerfully and with alignment, you must first feel and embody the reality of already possessing what you desire.

🌸 Why Start with Feeling?

Feeling is the language of vibration—and the universe responds to vibration more than words.

It signals readiness to receive. If you can feel it, you can allow it.

Feelings influence and shape beliefs, thoughts, and actions.

Without aligned feelings, your efforts might feel empty, scattered, or forced—even if technically correct.

🔑 Principle:

“If I already had my goal, how would I feel?”

Live in that feeling now.

🏠 How to Develop Feelings?

Visualization: See yourself in the fulfilled state—focus on how it feels, not how it happens.

Affirmations: Speak what supports the feeling (e.g., “I feel safe and abundant.”)

Embodiment: Breathe, move, and act as if the feeling is already natural to you.

Gratitude: Be grateful in advance. It anchors the feeling in now.

what are the feelings we should develop relating to our goals give with examples

Beautiful and very important question! 🌸

Let's go step-by-step:

1. How to know the feelings?

Ask yourself:

"If I already had my goal, how would I feel?"

"What emotions naturally arise when I imagine it fulfilled?"

Feelings are the emotional atmosphere you would be living in if the goal was already real.

For example:

If your goal is financial freedom, maybe the feeling is relaxed abundance, confidence, ease, security.

If your goal is deep loving relationships, the feeling might be joy, connection, being loved, warmth.

If your goal is health and vitality, the feeling could be energy, gratitude, aliveness, strength.

You tune into the emotional "temperature" of the fulfilled life—not the "lack" of it.

2. What feelings should we develop relating to our goals?

You should develop the feelings that match the vibration of your fulfilled desire.

Here's a simple map:

Type of Goal	Feelings to Develop	Example Affirmations
Financial Freedom	Abundance, Security, Ease	"I feel safe, abundant, and supported by Life."
Loving Relationships	Love, Connection, Joy	"I am deeply connected to loving souls."
Health and Vitality	Strength, Aliveness, Gratitude	"I feel alive, vibrant, and whole."
Spiritual Realization	Peace, Bliss, Openness	"I rest in the boundless peace of my Being."
Creative Success	Inspiration, Confidence, Excitement	"I am thrilled to share my gifts with the world."

🌸 3. Key Insight:

You are not waiting for the goal to come to feel the feeling.

You create the feeling first, and the goal comes into the vibration of that feeling.

⚡ Feeling is the magnet that pulls reality into form. ⚡

"If I already had my goal, how would I feel?"

Yes! ☀️

This one question—"If I already had my goal, how would I feel?"— is like a golden key. 🔑 ✨

It instantly shifts you out of lack and into fulfillment.

It takes you from "wanting" to "having" energetically.

🌿 Here's how you use it:

When you sit quietly, gently ask yourself:

"If it was already done, already real, how would I feel right now?"

And then:

Notice what emotions naturally arise (maybe relief, gratitude, joy, freedom, peace).

Let those feelings grow inside you—as if you're watering a beautiful garden.

Stay with those feelings, even for just a few minutes.

You are building the emotional vibration of the reality you desire.

Example:

Goal: A thriving spiritual healing practice.

Ask:

"If I already had this practice, how would I feel?"

Answer:

"I would feel joyful helping others... fulfilled... abundant... deeply connected to Divine flow."

Action:

Now feel those feelings now.

Not someday. Not later.

Feel them right now as truth.

The magic is:

Your outer world eventually reshapes itself to match the inner vibration you are living.

Make your goal big and emotion easy

Beautiful insight. ☀️

Make your goal big and your emotion easy means:

Big goal: Dream expansively. Think beyond current limits. Let your goal inspire, uplift, and stretch your soul.

Easy emotion: Don't make your emotional state complicated, heavy, or conditional.

Feel light, grateful, joyful, already fulfilled — now — even before the goal appears.

Because easy, flowing emotions create a faster alignment with Pure Consciousness, and big, expansive visions naturally fit the infinite nature of Being.

1. Set a Big Goal (Dream Big)

Think of a goal that excites you, something that feels almost like a stretch but still feels possible with the right mindset and actions.

The goal could be related to any area of life: career, finances, relationships, health, or personal development.

Example Goal: “I am building a successful business that supports my lifestyle and gives me freedom.”

2. Keep the Emotions Simple

Now, rather than focusing on complex or heavy emotions, think about the simplest and most uplifting feelings that align with that big goal.

Example Emotions for Success Goal:

Excitement – Feel excited about the opportunities coming your way.

Gratitude – Appreciate where you are right now and everything you've already accomplished.

Confidence – Believe in yourself and your ability to achieve this goal.

Ease – Feel at ease knowing that everything is unfolding as it should.

3. Feel the Simple Emotions Regularly

Even if the goal seems big, the emotions that align with it should be simple and easy to access. You don't need to feel intense or overwhelming feelings every moment—just make sure the emotions you choose are authentic and uplifting.

For example, when you think of your business goal, feel excited about the possibilities, grateful for the resources you already have, and confident that you're taking the right steps.

4. Stay Consistent with Small, Easy Emotional Shifts

Every day, focus on experiencing these simple emotions. You don't need to feel all of them at once, but you can shift into them as often as possible.

Quick Practice: Take a moment to close your eyes and picture yourself achieving that big goal. Let yourself feel a wave of excitement, then gratitude, and then confidence. Just for a few seconds, feel these emotions, and let them fuel you.

5. Trust the Process

Trust that by keeping the emotions simple, you're still energetically aligned with your big goal. The key is to not overcomplicate things.

Believe that the universe will bring what you need as long as you keep your feelings in harmony with what you want.

Example Goal and Easy Emotions in Action:

Big Goal: "I am financially free and living a life full of adventures and experiences."

Simple Emotions:

Freedom – Feel light and unburdened, imagining the freedom you already have.

Excitement – Get excited about the future and the experiences you're creating.

Gratitude – Appreciate what you already have, and feel thankful for the abundance around you.

Peace – Feel calm, knowing that your financial freedom is unfolding in perfect timing.

By focusing on these easy emotions (freedom, excitement, gratitude, peace), you're not only aligning yourself with your big goal but also feeling good while doing it.

Prepare list of feelings which you want to experience and which you do not want to experience, according to your goals

Sure! Let's prepare it systematically:

☀ Feelings I Want to Experience (Aligned with My Goals)

Joy — light, spontaneous happiness

Gratitude — deep thankfulness, appreciation

Confidence — steady trust in myself and the process

Peace — inner stillness and calm

Freedom — feeling unrestricted, expansive

Love — unconditional acceptance and warmth

Abundance — feeling fully provided for Power — calm, inner strength and ability

Clarity — clear knowing, no confusion

Excitement — energized anticipation

Fulfillment — deep sense of "wholeness" and contentment

Worthiness — feeling completely deserving

Divine connection — feeling guided, supported, blessed

Ease — everything happening effortlessly

Trust — complete faith in the unseen good unfolding

🚫 Feelings that I should not experience or should release or transform (contrary to my goals)

Fear — paralyzing doubt, anxiety
Doubt — questioning myself or the process
Frustration — irritation, impatience
Anger — reactive negativity
Guilt — feeling bad for wanting or receiving
Shame — feeling unworthy
Lack — sense of "not enough"
Hopelessness — giving up before starting
Overwhelm — drowning in effort and stress
Jealousy — comparing and resenting
Resentment — holding grudges
Unworthiness — feeling like I don't deserve success
Victimhood — blaming circumstances
Desperation — forcing outcomes
Attachment — clinging anxiously to results

Summary Insight:

Only carry the feelings that expand you, not the ones that contract you.

✨ The more you consciously choose and cultivate the feelings you want, the faster your thoughts, beliefs, and actions (FBTA) align with your highest destiny.

Difficult to feel empowering emotions

That's very honest — and very important to recognize.

Let's stay close to the truth you're feeling.

It's completely normal:

When life feels heavy, when past patterns weigh on us, or when the body-mind has stored old emotions, it can feel difficult (even almost impossible) to genuinely feel empowering emotions like joy, gratitude, love, or freedom.

But here's the deeper truth:

- ✨ You don't have to force yourself to feel high emotions.
- ✨ You just have to create the space for them to naturally arise.

Think of it like this:

If a room is cluttered and dark, you don't have to force the sunlight in.
You just open the window a little... and light begins to enter by itself. 🌞

🌱 So what to do when empowering emotions feel difficult?

1. Start by honoring exactly how you feel now.

Feel the heaviness, the numbness, the tiredness — without judgment.
Just sit with it like you would sit with a hurting friend.

Breathe.

This creates space.

- ✨ Honesty with where you are is already higher vibration.

2. Use very small, very gentle shifts.

Don't try to jump from sadness to bliss.
It's too big. The mind and body won't believe it.

Instead:

Find the next softest feeling.

From sadness → maybe you can touch a moment of peace.

From anger → maybe you can touch a moment of power or clarity.

From numbness → maybe you can touch a tiny curiosity or willingness.

✨ Tiny emotional shifts are more real and powerful than forcing.

3. Use the body first, when feelings are stuck.

Sometimes emotions are stuck not in the mind, but in the body.

Try:

Gentle movement (walk slowly, stretch, sway)

Deep breathing (especially long exhale)

Hug yourself, place a hand on your heart

The body's softness invites emotional softness.

4. Whisper gentle truths to yourself.

Instead of forcing "I am joyful!" (which might feel fake), try soft, true statements like:

"I am open to feeling a little lighter."

"I honor my journey exactly as it is."

"It's okay to take one soft step at a time."

✨ Compassion unlocks emotion better than force.

☀️ Key understanding:

You are not failing if you don't feel empowering emotions instantly.

You are purifying the ground so real feelings can grow and stay. 🌱

You are already rising by staying present.
